On campus this spring? Visit "The Bell Jars: Lyman Conservatory and Sylvia Plath's Botanical Imagination" through June 28, 2024

Sylvia Plath '55 went on to become one of the 20th century's most important writers, celebrated for her poetry and her novel, The Bell Jar. Botanical images and tropes run throughout her work, partly because Plath took a year-long General Botany course at Smith's Lyman Plant Conservatory as a first-year student. The bell jar, Plath's famous metaphor for the oppressive conditions of life as a woman in the United States of the 1950s, is one example. A bell jar is a botanical technology used in horticulture and plant physiology. Plath employed them during lab exercises on photosynthesis, and her novel drew on this experience. These same bell jars are still in use at Lyman today.

"The Bell Jars: Lyman Conservatory and Sylvia Plath's Botanical Imagination" tells this story, shedding new light on Plath's life and work while also examining the power of interspecies encounters between people and plants. Using archival materials and Plath's literary work as a guide, this exhibit invites visitors to inhabit Lyman as Plath once did. Cross-pollinating the humanities and natural sciences, we hope to examine Plath's botanical imagination and Lyman's role in cultivating it.

FROM OUR CLASS PRESIDENT

Dear Classmates,

It's hard to believe we will soon celebrate our milestone 50th reunion!

I hope each of you will join us to commemorate this very significant time in our lives as Smithies. We "grew up" at Smith during a time of significant change and the world in which we currently live still presents significant challenges. We learned a lot during 1970-1974 and for many of us, that learning continues today. My hope is we will apply new learnings to support a better world for future generations. We are members of the Great Class of 1974, we are Women of Change, and we can continue to effectively influence positive change.

In preparation for our reunion, I reflected on my role as your class president as well as just how far we have come since our 45th reunion. In my first communication with you, I asked each of you to personally reach out to "invite, include, and encourage our classmates to belong" to the Class of '74 sisterhood and the Smith community. It was my hope that "ask" would inspire each of us to seek, create, and support opportunities for deeper connections among all members of our class. In support of that request, the class leadership team and I worked together over the last few years actively communicating with all members of our class to encourage engagement in our reunion planning activities, community building, and fundraising efforts. I am delighted to witness where we are today. Many of us have forged new relationships with our class members; we actively participated in class virtual and in-person events and we had FUN doing it!

In previous communications I also shared my hope that each of us would play a role in shaping the future for Smith. Since our 45th, many continued to Pay It Forward by making gifts to Smith that supported the numerous transformative educational opportunities for Smith students. We established goals and identified fundraising priorities for the class. However, we still

FUNDRAISING UPDATE

Educating women improves the world—plus, we all know how Smith shaped and improved our own lives. Giving to Smith is one powerful way to pay it forward. We hope you'll join us in contributing to Smith!

Your current leadership team is delighted to announce the Class of '74 Leadership Challenge in honor of our 50th Milestone Reunion! If our class reaches 50% donor participation by Reunion weekend, the leadership team will collectively give $100,000 to the class gift.

Our fundraising goal for our 50th reunion (i.e., the five-year amount that we want to have raised by reunion) is $7.4M. To date, we have raised over $5.9M, from 185 of our classmates (36%). We have about a month to go, and we aim to have at least 50% of our class participate by giving a gift of any amount. Every gift matters: no gift is too small.

We have identified three class fundraising priorities and your support of these priorities will help us achieve our goal and help Smith provide educational opportunities to students who will change our world!

The Class of 1974 Endowed Scholarship Fund will provide scholarship funding to Smith students. To direct your contribution to our class endowed scholarship fund, specify "Class of 1974 Endowed Scholarship Fund" when you make your gift.

The Emergency Fund for Students of Color was started by members of the Class of 1974 at the 25th reunion in 1999. To direct your donation to this fund, specify "Emergency Fund for Students of Color" when you make your donation.

The Smith Fund sustains the academic innovation, global education, scholarships, and resources that make our alma mater exceptional.

If you already made a gift, please consider making another reunion gift to help us reach our goal of $7.4 million. Giving is fast and easy; you can contribute online at smith.edu/1974/give or by phone at 800-241-2056, using option 1.

Most important, we hope to see you in person at Reunion! Please contact us with any questions and thank you.

Inez D'Arcangelo and Mary-Margaret Chren Landefeld

GIFT PLANNING UPDATE

I want to thank sincerely all those who have joined the Grécourt Society by funding life income gifts or naming Smith in your estate plans. To date, the Class of '74 has promised $3,335,272 this way. As a former scholarship student, I am keenly aware of the need and eternally grateful to those who made my time at Smith possible. I hope that many more of you will consider a Grécourt promise: a gift that doesn't affect your day-to-day cash needs but ensures that Smith remains a vibrant place of hope and promise for young women for years to come. Simply by notifying the Planned Giving Office that Smith is in your will, you will become a Grécourt member. Please join me at the Grécourt Reception with President Willie-LeBreton in May!
